Our most flexible control to date.

Finally, there's a control that can be seamlessly integrated into a variety of heating and ventilation systems. Universal and made especially for complex systems with several heating circuits. Making it right at home in buildings of every size.

That's what makes the Vaillant multiMATIC our most flexible heating control yet.

Discover a new world full of possibilities.

It just doesn't get any better: harmonising all devices with a single control. Using all components. Including more comfort and lower energy costs. This intelligent heating control is also modular, making the addition of further components in the future possible.

As you can see, the Vaillant multiMATIC grows with your customers' needs. So that your company can also keep growing. Together with us.

Highly efficient.

And weather-compensating.

One control for everything

That's what we like to hear: heat pumps and ventilation systems can be operated with the same control. And it works for all other systems too. Since the control was developed together with end users, your customers will find its initial set-up as convenient as its subsequent use.

Time-saving installation

Use it once and understand it forever: an installation menu with an installation assistant and plain text display. For every system. Even complex systems only require a few components. That way, you can save more time during the installation.

Efficiency through intelligence

The result of intelligent functionality: no need for time-intensive settings for individual elements. All system components reach their maximum efficiency all on their own. And they allow for the optimal operating state with minimal energy expenditure. With additional energy savings thanks to weather-compensating operation via an external temperature sensor.

ErP certification

That way you can refer directly to the efficiency label while setting up the Vaillant system. For verifiable energy savings.

Maximum comfort of living with minimal energy use.
